LETTERS FROM FRANCE

Extracts From Letters From Our Boys "Over There"

Extracts from letters written by Winfield Howe while in the hospital after being gassed.

May 12

Dear Mother:

Will write just a few lines to let you know I am O. K. and still able to fight the Germans.

I have just been to the hospital for a few days owing to the effect of gas, but am coming O. K. now. And hope I can get another crack at them before going to a rest camp.

Now is everything coming at home? I have been too busy on the last front to write but guess I shall be able to write often from now on. I got very little gas, just enough to lay me off for two or three days. The old Div. is showing the Boche what she's made of I guess and it's all to our credit. I want to get two more cracks at them any way, and no doubt but what I will get several more. I have got two of them and I want to get two more before they get me. Then I think I shall have done my bit, don't you?

Buddy also was laid up for a short time but he is feeling fine now. Oh, I can only get another crack at them. I am writing this letter in bed so please excuse the writing. You will probably see a lot about it, the war, I mean, in the papers. You want to believe about half what's in them divided by two and then you'll come very near the truth.

I have got two letters from you in the last month and I don't understand it. We hope to hear again soon. Tell me that I will try and write tomorrow or perhaps this P. M. but am too tired now. Give my regards to all and lots of love to the family.

May 15

Dear Mother:

Just a few lines to let you know I am O. K. and expect to be out of here in a few days. It seems so odd to sleep in a real bed that I stay awake all night to enjoy it. It's the first time for almost a year since I've had such a luxury.

How's every little thing at home? I am still waiting for a letter from aforementioned place. The waiting's good, but gee, I shall get homesick if I don't hear soon.

The hospital trains here—that is the U. S. trains—are moving wonderful. It's like riding in a moving palace to ride in one. I'd like to tour the world in one of them. The beds are as comfortable as any at home and they even have telephone's running all through the cars. The Frenchies hardly know what to think about them. They have got everything stopped that I've yet seen in France.

Well, don't worry about me for no Fella, don't worry about me for I don't believe. I've got two of them anyway so I can die fairly happy, but still there are about eighteen left for me alone. My minimum is twenty and I shan't kick the bucket till I get that many. With love.

Win.
May 19

Dear Ma:

Just a few lines to let you know I am coming along fine and shall be back with my company very soon.

How is everyone? I haven't heard from you for nearly three weeks and probably won't hear until I am out of the hospital. Wish they would invent a gun to shoot soldiers across the Atlantic on their forloughs. You would see me home on my leave. I must write to Edison about it.

Everything is O. K. with me, so try not to worry. Give my love to all. Your loving son,
Bert. Winslow B. Howe,

Somewhere in France, Dear Mother, Somewhere I can not tell
In the midst of the fray
I am writing today
To let you know that I'm alive and well.

There are boys here from old New England.
Fighting beside me;
But cheer up dear,
For the next time you hear
I'll be "somewhere in Germany."

Some heading for a letter ain't it me. Well I thought perhaps you hadn't heard it, so I'd send it along. Now I'll write you an original one.

GOULD'S ACADEMY

Another end and another beginning. Graduation day has come and gone and every year seems to be better than the last.

The concert was omitted this year so all the exercises were centered on Thursday and at an early hour Odeon Hall was filled with loyal friends of the school.

The stage was beautifully decorated with green and white, the class colors. The back of the stage was a solid wall of evergreen with two flags and the date 1918 in white. Gould's service flag with 39 stars and one gold star also hung on the stage. Across the front was the class motto in large white letters, "Exultation Non Famae."

Hanging over the class banner was a service flag with one star in honor of Corp. Vivian Hutchins, a former member of the class. At the close of the exercises three rousing cheers were given for him by the school.

The class gift to the school was a $50 Liberty Bond. The marshal was Harold Bartlett and the flower girl, Miss Margaret Hanscom. Music was furnished by Pettengill's orchestra of Lewiston.

CLASS ODE

Tune: "Good-Bye, Glory!"

Myrtle Florence Wilson

Four years we've labored together

Under the gold and blue;

Studying, playing, and working,

While to our colors true;

But now from Gould's we are turning,

No more to heed its bell,

To beloved school and dear teachers

We bid a fond farewell.

CHORUS

Good-bye, old G. A.,
We now must part;
We'll ever love thee
So dear to each heart,
Mid tell or pleasure,
Where'er our way,
We will remember
Dear old G. A.

W. S. S. DRIVE

From now until June 28th, there is on a great drive for War Savings Stamps. $2,000,000,000 must be pledged by the people of our nation before that time. These stamps do not have to be bought now but a pledge has to be made so that our administration may know what to count upon in making its financial plans.

Bethel's quota is $33,832.50 and only a little more than $5,000 of this has been as yet taken. Three persons have taken half this amount. In order to "go over the top" as we have done in every other drive, every person in Bethel must buy and buy to the very limit of their capacity until they have taken $1,000 which is all that one person is allowed to hold. This fact makes it difficult for us to sell $33,832.50 of these stamps. In the Bond drives we have had persons who have taken large amounts and thus placed Bethel high in the list. Now these persons can take but $1,000 and therefore every person who can possibly take $1,000 must do so, if not $1,000, as much as possible, no one can be a slacker in this drive.

A list of voters in town is being made and sent to headquarters—also a list of those who are not voters but who can buy. A house to house canvass will be made for sales and pledges.

No one can escape either buying or being known as a slacker and the man who can buy a $1,000 and does not will not only be known here among his own people but at headquarters. Your boy may not be over there fighting, perhaps dying, but your neighbor's boy is, and he is fighting for you and for me. We have got to back him and we want to back him to our last dollar.

In those towns where the quota is not at once pledged, town meetings will be called, proclamations for which are to be issued by the President and Governor. People are to be called together and personally and individually asked how many stamps they have bought; names are to be taken and each person's exact status known. These are war times.

It will be a last disgrace to our town and to every person in it if Bethel falls down in this drive, but she will not for you are going to do your duty, you are going to buy and pledge enough to carry us over the top with a bound.

Read the different War Savings ads this week. Our business men and others have been most generous in contributing space for these ads. Only a part appear this week—others come next week and the week after. I wish to thank all who have contributed space, and to any who have not contributed, there is yet opportunity as we have many different profits. Everyone I have asked has given space but I have not been able to see all. THE JUNE ATLANTIC

It has always seemed to me that one of the greatest services a person may render as he goes through the world is to call attention to the beauties he may discover by the way. Wholesome distrust of his own judgment, horror of seeming to speak ex cathedra, and the fear of a bore, usually combine to restrain the impulse.

Everybody alive to the "glory of words" must have been joy in the splendor of the literature already growing out of this in so many ways terrible catastrophe of war.

To say nothing of the many books by which we are enriched the magazines are doing an immeasurable service. Of them all it seems to me none is more nobly dedicated to the work of the war than the Atlantic Monthly, perhaps the least generally read among us. For many months the issues have been of such superlative value that it has been difficult to restrain the desire to call all the neighbors and friends together to hear them read.

The June number is so full of things that ought to be read that I am going to risk the step of calling attention to it through the friendly columns of the Citizen and beg that it may not be left unused, as in the multiplicity of magazines, and the ceaseless piling up of work before us all, it is too likely to be.

It has one of Maurice Barres' incomparable tales of French heroism. An English Woman's Message which ought to be brought straight home to every one of us. In the "Contributors Club," "The letter of a Father to an Enlisted Son," rich in wisdom, insight, tenderness and bravery, which after all is but what all these fathers and mothers are giving their sons so gloriously would say had they the gift of turning their hearts inside out, and were not, as most are, inarticulate in the face of this remorseless overturning of their lives. But it is so entire what they would want. It is so entire that I am thankful that somebody has been given the grace to say it. And in the Contributors Column the editor publishes a letter of infinite appeal because as he says "it infuses the struggle going on in millions of hearts today."

There is Mr. Beebe's illuminating "A Naturalist in Paris," and a notable article "The Gulf" by the Rev. William Sperry which seems in many ways one of the most impressive magazine articles of the war has yet produced, for Mr. Sperry has the gift of "winged words," with which to voice his vision.

Margaret Prescott Montague who has a charm peculiarly her own and of greater, some of us believe, than that of any woman writer of the day (if you do not know her, pray read "Closed Doors" and "Of Water and the Spirit") sends the inimitable "What Would Marce Robert Say?" (Marce Robert is Gen. Robert E. Lee) which is but a family archives is a note in the children's printing from a very small daughter of the house to an injured playmate, in lame apology for some high handed behavior, which reads: "Dear Sylvia, I am sorry I was cross. But I want you to do what I want you to do." This is from one who confesses to a weakness for wanting people to read what she wants them to read.

G. A. TEACHER HONORED BY HEBRON ALUMNI

The reception room at St. Marie's Hospital, Lewiston, was the scene of an unusual gathering Saturday afternoon, when a Committee, representing the hundreds of alumni of Hebron Academy, paid a visit to Miss Nellie L. Whitman, a patient of the hospital, who, for nearly forty years, was a dearly loved teacher at Hebron.

The Committee consisted of James W. Hibbs, Esquire, of Bethel, Mass., Miss E. M. Barrows, a teacher in Boston, and Principal Frank E. Hanscom of Gould's Academy Bethel, where Miss Whitman was teaching at the time of her unfortunate accident some three months ago. Other friends accompanied the Committee, and the hospital authorities waived their rule of admitting but two visitors at one time and ushered the company into Miss Whitman's presence in the reception room.

The object of the visit was the presentation of a gift to Miss Whitman, as a token of the love and esteem in which she is held by Hebron alumni everywhere.

The gift consisted of a scrap book containing several hundred autograph letters from her former pupils, men and women representing almost every walk in life and nearly every state in the union, and a check running well up into the hundreds. The scrap book was an after thought of the Committee, as all the letters were written to Mr. Hibbs, the chairman, and the writers had no thought that they would be seen by Miss Whitman, but they contained such tributes to her wise teaching and uplifting influence, and expressed such pleasure in being permitted to participate in this tribute of appreciation, that the Committee knew they would be prized more highly by Miss Whitman than any pecuniary gift, however large. Accordingly they were consigned to the extent of cutting out any mention of the amount enclosed, and then made into a scrap book by Mrs. James W. Hibbs, who was a member of the party.

On the first page was a copy of the circular letter sent out by the Committee, and this was followed by the following letter addressed to Miss Whitman, and signed by the members of the Committee, for the alumni:

Dear Miss Whitman:

Ever since you ceased to be a member of the Hebron Academy Faculty the alumni of old Hebron have sought an opportunity to express to you their undying loyalty and affection, together with their heartfelt appreciation of all that the influence of your beautiful Christian life and character meant to make them at a time when their own characters were being moulded for manhood and womanhood.

When the intelligence of your unfortunate accident caused a great tidal wave of sympathy to flow toward you from the hearts of your boys and girls in all parts of the country, the time seemed ripe to give to this feeling some outward form and expression. Accordingly a hasty canvass was made with the results herein indicated.

We wish you to accept this gift with no consideration whatever for its pecuniary value, but as a very slight expression of the love and esteem in which you are held by Hebron alumni wherever they are, and with the full assurance that our affection for you is as lasting as the eternal hills which surround the school.

When the future may lose a place in the history of Hebron Academy, be assured that you will ever remain yours. As when a pebble is dropped into a clear, calm lake, a ripple is started which broadens and widens until it reaches the shore, so the waves of influence which you set in motion at old Hebron is still vibrating in the hearts and lives of your boys and girls, and will continue to expand and widen until it breaks at last upon the boundless shores of eternity.

"We may build more splendid habitations, Fill our homes with painting and with sculpture, But we cannot buy with gold the old associations."

Yours in memory of old Hebron days,
JAMES W. HIBBS, '91,
EVA M. BARROWS, '96,
FRANK E. HANSCOM, '95,
For the Alumni.

Rarely, if ever, has a teacher, while living, been paid such a tribute, and the hundreds of men and women throughout the country, and even across the sea, who have not under her teaching and the love and character, know how well the tribute is deserved.

The presentation was made by a special messenger to the school of the Committee.

Miss Whitman was taken completely by surprise, and at first was quite overcome by emotion, but succeeded in expressing her hearty appreciation in the most sincere manner which her old pupils remember so well.

Miss Whitman's friends will be glad to know that she is recovering from her injury, can now walk very well with the aid of crutches, and has some weight upon her feet. She is planning to leave the hospital and probably be able to resume her work at Gould's Academy with the opening of the new school year in September.

WAR NEWS DIGEST

Mories of Activities and Conditions Throughout the United States and on the Battle Fronts from Washington, D. C.

Gas Masks for Horses Are Being Sent to France

The Gas Defense Service is now manufacturing about 5,000 horse gas masks per day. These are being sent to France, and it is expected that within a short time every horse connected with the American Expeditionary Forces will be equipped with the new masks.

The Gas Defense Service has a completely equipped factory for the manufacture of the masks. In less than three weeks a building was selected and the factory was producing masks. The introduction of riveting machinery has done away with the heavy hand sewing of the frame which support the masks on the faces of the horses. The masks are so constructed that no metal or chemically impregnated parts can chafe the horse.

Browning Machine Gun Passes Tests for Airplane Use

The Browning machine gun has successfully undergone a test to determine its value for use with aircraft. This is one of three types of machine guns with which the rate of fire can be synchronized with the revolutions of the propeller of a tractor airplane that the gun can be fired by the pilot of a combat plane through the revolving blades.

Airplane propellers revolve at from 500 to 2,000 revolutions per minute. The machine gun is connected with the airplane engine by a mechanical or hydraulic device, and impulses from the crank shaft are transmitted to the machine gun. The rate of fire of the machine gun is constant and its fire is synchronized with the revolving propeller blades by "wasting" a certain percentage of the impulses it receives from the airplane engine and by having the remaining impulses trip or pull the trigger so that the gun fires just at the fraction of a second when the propeller blades are clear of the line of fire.

The pilot operates the gun by means of a lever which controls the circuit and allows the impulses to trip the trigger.

Because of the instruction of gas officers who have been at the various camps for the last six months, the troops which are going forward to France are well posted on methods of combating gas attacks, says a statement authorized by the War Department. A group of British gas officers has been in this country since last summer. One of these men has been at each of the training camps, advising and assisting the division gas officer.

All the men going overseas are supplied with gas helmets. Under the division gas officers and their assistants, the men are drilled in the use of masks, taught how to detect the presence of gas, and given actual experience with different sorts of gases. Muzzle gas shells and cloud attacks, used often at night in connection with high explosives, help to make the training realistic.

The United States has been able to build on the experience of the British and French, to whom gas attacks were unknown when they entered the war. No American troops have been sent to the front without practical experience in defending themselves against gas.

The training of instructors in gas defense includes a course of about one month. Most of the gas officers are commissioned first lieutenants.

Bands Enlarged and Bugle and Drum Corps Organized

Acting on a suggestion of Gen. Pershing an order has been issued increasing each regiment's band from 25 to 50 members. Band leaders having had more than five years' military experience as band leaders will be made first lieutenants; those with less than five years' experience will be made second lieutenants.

Big Crowds See American Base Ball in London

"As the latest wonder of the world London has taken to baseball," says a Committee on Public Information representative in London. "The English never before had much use for our great game. They called it an exaggerated form of rounders and wondered what the noise was all about, but the American and Canadian soldiers in England have been educating them."

A regular league of eight teams has started a summer schedule, and the English public is learning what it has missed. Big crowds witness the game which is played every Saturday, and the sport bids fair to become widely popular. Here is the way Thomas Burke, the short-story writer, reports a game in the London Star of May 27:

"Last week I discovered baseball. The match between the Army and Navy teams was my first glimpse of a pastime that has captivated a continent, and I can well understand its appeal to a modern temperament. Believe me, it's the good goods. And the crowd! I had heard and read much of baseball fans and their methods of rooting, but my conceptions were nothing near the real thing. The grandstands, crowded with Army and Navy fans, bristling with megaphones and tossing hats and denunciations, would have made a superb subject for a lithograph by Sir Frank Brangwyn."

"The game got hold of me before the first pitched ball. The players in their hybrid costumes and huge gloves, the catcher in his gas mask, and the movements of the teams as they practiced runs shook me with excitement. Then the game began and the rooting began. In past years I have attended various football matches in mining districts where the players came in for a certain amount of ragging, but they were church services compared with the furious abuse, and hazing handed to any unfortunate who failed to play ball."

"There was, for example, an explosive, reverberating 'A-h-h-h-h' which I have been practicing in my back yard ever since, but without once catching its true quality. You should have heard Admiral Sims, as college yell leader, when the Navy made a home-run hit, with his 'Atta Boy! Oh, attaway to play ball,' and when they got an error he sure handed the Navy theirs."

"Yes; I've got it. From now on I'm a fan. I'm going to see every baseball match played anywhere near London. I shall never be able to watch with excitement a cricket or football match after this; it'd be like a tortoise race. Come along with me to the next match and join me in rooting and in killing the umpire."

Increase in Army Since Start of War More Than 1,000 Per Cent

One of the interesting developments of the war, according to a statement authorized by the War Department, is the rapid expansion of the various bureaus of the War Department. At the outbreak of the war there were less than 3,000 employees on duty. The number now is approximately 25,000, an increase of 800 per cent. While this represents a tremendous expansion, the increase in the Army itself has been more than 1,000 per cent.

Only 4 out of every 100 officers in the service were in the Army at the time the war began.

The increase in personnel at the administrative end of the war thus has not kept pace with the growth of the Military Establishment.

Your Elixir Saved My Life

Words of a Maine Man

Henry O. Hanley of 17 Cross Street, Belfast, Maine, writes us: "I am feeling lots better and thank your Elixir (Dr. True's Elixir) saved my life." Dr. True's Elixir is a great medicine, a Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It tones the stomach, moves the bowels and expels worms. Surprising it is how many people have worms. Children suffer agony from worms. Signs or symptoms of worms are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pain about the navel, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Get Dr. True's Elixir from your dealer. The cost is small. It expels worms and restores health. No better Laxative made for young or old. Millions have used it. On Dr. J. F. True & Co., 40c, 60c, $1. Write us, Auburn, Maine.

to 800 grams—according to German newspapers. The monthly meat ration in Saxony has been reduced from 800 to 700 grams. Public officials are reported in the Prussian press as discussing the possibility of a further reduction of the bread ration in Prussia.

A Munich paper reports that from the beginning of the war to March 1, 1918, Bavarian hog stocks have decreased from 2,109,312 to 766,391 head. The Danish hog census shows a decrease from 1,051,000 hogs July 12, 1917, to 780,000 December 5, 1917 or a decrease of one-third the number at the beginning of the war.

Ordnance Department Spends Huge Sums for War Material

The Army Ordnance Department has negotiated approximately 12,000 contracts since this country entered the war, involving within $75,000,000 of the total funds directly available for the Department for the present fiscal year—$2,389,286,045. Additional contracts totaling $1,593,703,741 have been entered into on the authority of Congress pending appropriation of an amount aggregating $1,071,498,750.

The magnitude of the task of the Ordnance Department financially is evidenced by the disbursement recently in a single day of more than $25,000,000 on ordinary contract vouchers. Disbursements for the month of April, 1918, ran to $356,884,863, an interesting amount as compared with $5,030,204 disbursed by the Ordnance Department in April 1917. These disbursements were made at the Ordnance Office in Washington. Amounts disbursed at Government arsenals are not included.

One check recently drawn by the Ordnance Disbursing Officer for ordnance material was for $18,750,000. One regulation made recently by this same officer on the Treasury was for $100,000,000. This is the largest single regulation ever made by any United States disbursing officer.

Prior to two months ago, before the Ordnance Department established its 11 district offices which zoned the country to expedite payments to contractors and relieve the strain upon the main office in Washington, the Disbursing Officer at Washington signed from 500 to $3,000 checks a day.

Arrangements have been made for a reduced railroad fare of approximately 1 cent a mile for soldiers and sailors who desire to visit their homes before going overseas.

The restriction on the importation of crude rubber has been followed by restrictions on importation of four commodities possessing some of the characteristics of rubber, and capable under some circumstances of being used as substitutes for natural rubber.

Increased demands for common labor are shown by a recent employment survey by the United States Employment Service. Fifty three centers have calls exceeding the present supply, while but three cities, all in the West, report a surplus. Normal conditions are reported by 25 cities.

In March and April the Secretary of Agriculture, on recommendation of the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering, approved 212 State road-building projects involving under the Federal aid road act. The estimated cost of these improvements to the States is about $15,000,000. The Federal aid allowed is more than $5,000,000.

Bottlers of soft drinks in the United States may save approximately 50,000 tons of sugar annually by using other sweetening materials, according to investigations by specialists of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture. The Bureau of Chemistry is preparing to furnish bottlers with sweetening formulas that will allow the actual sugar content in soft drinks to be cut to 50 per cent or less and at the same time will preserve the customary taste of the beverages. Starch sugar, starch sirup, maltose sirup, and honey are the substitutes used.

and the season promises to be the biggest in the history of club work. Some of the records last year seem almost unbeatable but each year has shown better records than the previous season and there is no reason to think that this one will be an exception.

Dorothy Shackford of Ellsworth Falls uses her jars summer and winter. Last year this energetic club member canned the equivalent of 1,077 pints. During January of this year, she canned 32 pints. "And what did she can?" you ask. Pork and Apples! She was a member of the pig, garden and poultry clubs so she was sure of products to can. She has sold over two-thirds of her canned goods.

Emile Nichols of Dexter the state champion in the canning clubs lived up to her ideal and this accounts for her championship. In the story of her season's work she said "Whatever I wish doing is worth doing well and we should strive to make the best better."

The members of the canning clubs last year averaged 95 pints per member. Many of these things would otherwise have been wasted. Emily Morse of Cherryfield canned over 600 pints and Ruth Weeks of Gardiner did more than 500 pints.

Almost any girl in the state can do at least fifty pints including 10 jars of different varieties of fruits and vegetables for exhibit. Three boys have done it and they have done it well too. Clyde Page of Hancock made a specialty of canning the Ask he had caught. This year we cannot allow food to go to waste. To the girls in the canning club the University of Maine, Extension Service furnishes free printed instruction sheets explaining step by step, the cold pack canning and other means of preserving. To be a club member and compete for a prize in local, county and state contests a boy or girl between 10 and 18 must can fifty pints of fruits and vegetables. Keep a record of the cost of materials, write a story on "My Season's Work" and make an exhibit of ten pints of different varieties of fruits and vegetables. "If you can't go across across and can a can for Sammy." A patriotic woman can do much for the Marx and Stripes by organizing a canning club and acting as local leader. For further information write to your county agent or to the State Leader of Boys' and Girls' Clubs, College of Agriculture, Orono, Maine.

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

War Savings Stamps are a direct loan from you to Uncle Sam. Nothing can lessen their value. They're always at par. They pay you well, though that isn't half so important to you as what your money does for that boy—maybe your own—over there. Back him up. Keep food going to him. Keep a coat on him. Keep his clips full of cartridges. And shoes on his feet. See that he has a "tin hat." Buy W. S. S.—send him over the top with the go-get-'em feeling that comes from knowing you are pledged to see that he gets what is coming to him.

Get ready to sign your Pledge of Patriotism on National War Savings Day. And buy W. S. S. until you wonder how you were able to do it. You'll pay $1.17 for each W. S. S. on June 28th—and you'll get $5 for each of them.

IN RHUBARB TIME

This Plentiful Spring Food Should Now Be Canned or Dried

Lucile Wheeler

Rhubarb or rhubarb is one of the first fresh foods of spring. Its value is often underestimated because it seemingly contains a small proportion of nutrients. Its fiber furnishes needed bulk or roughage which with its organic acids acts as a slight laxative. Rhubarb is therefore a useful food in dietaries containing meat, eggs and cereals, being in fact a cheap spring tonic and regulator.

A part of the plentiful spring supply of rhubarb should be saved for autumn and winter. It may be canned with out sugar in glass jars or it may be dried. It may be made into preserves and confections. Rhubarb has the acid pectin content which is the second essential for a good jelly. A commercial pectin is now on the market which may be used to make jellies from fruits lacking it.

Rhubarb Conserve (I)

Five pounds rhubarb, 2 oranges, 2 lemons, 5 pounds sugar, 3 quarts water. Wash and cut the rhubarb into one-half inch pieces. Scrub the oranges and lemons until rinds are perfectly free of all soil or scale insects. Slice through the rind into very thin sections, being careful to remove all seeds. Cook the rhubarb and sliced oranges and lemons together for fifteen minutes, if necessary, adding a very little water to prevent the fruit from burning. Add the three quarts of water and the sugar and allow the mixture to boil slowly until the syrup is thick like jelly.

Rhubarb Conserve (II)

Four pounds rhubarb, 1 pineapple (1 pound), 5 pounds sugar, 1-4 pound chopped walnut meats, 1-2 pound raisins. Wash and cut rhubarb as above. Peel pineapple and cut in thin pieces. Cook together slowly in a little water for thirty minutes. Add sugar, nuts and raisins and cook slowly till of jelly-like consistency.

Candied Rhubarb

Three cups rhubarb, 1-2 cupful sugar, 1-2 cupful water. Make a syrup of the sugar and water. To the syrup add rhubarb which has been cut in pieces one to two inches in length. Heat very slowly and do not let boil as the rhubarb will lose its shape. A double boiler may be used satisfactorily if left uncovered to allow evaporation. Heat until rhubarb is soft and the syrup is not too dilute to give the sweetness desired. Let stand for one day at least, longer if possible. Then carefully lift the pieces from the syrup with a fork, draining off as much liquid as possible. Place on a plate and allow to dry twenty-four to forty-eight hours. The fruit should be firm and candied. Roll in granulated sugar as grape fruit or orange peel is coated. The process cannot be hurried. It does not require much time in actual attention but is extended over a long period. The syrup can be used in sauce or used again for confections. The pink stalks give a pretty pink candy.

Rhubarb Ice

Two stalks rhubarb, 1 lemon, 1 table-spoonful gelatin soaked in 1-4 cupful cold water, 1-2 cupfuls sugar, 6 cupfuls water. Cook rhubarb till tender and rub it through a sieve. Cook sugar and water until it makes a good syrup. Add the gelatin and cooled rhubarb. When cold add lemon juice. Strain and freeze.

Rhubarb-and-Fruit Combinations

Can the rhubarb now and later when putting up fruits combine with pineapple, strawberries or red raspberries. These are more strongly flavored and when added to the rhubarb impart their flavor. This makes a cheaper product than the more expensive fruits used alone and it is none the less delicious.

Stewed Rhubarb

Soak dried rhubarb six to eight hours or overnight, using six quarts of water to one pound of rhubarb or, by measure, at least twice as much water as rhubarb. Cook slowly until done in the water in which the fruit has soaked. Sweeten to taste.

Dried Rhubarb

Select young and succulent stalks. Prepare as for stewing, by skinning the stalks and cutting into pieces one-fourth to one-half inch in length. Spread on rack of drier and dry slowly. When dried, condition the product by placing material in boxes and pouring from one to another once a day for three days. This is to insure perfect dryness so that the product will not mold.

Rhubarb Punch

Cook rhubarb until soft if fresh, otherwise use canned. Mash through sieve. To each cupful of rhubarb juice add three cupfuls water and one-fourth cupful sugar. The juice of a lemon, one-half cupful of strawberry juice or other fruit may be added if desired. Serve ice-cold in glasses with a bit of mint leaf or rose geranium in each glass. This is a delicious summer drink.

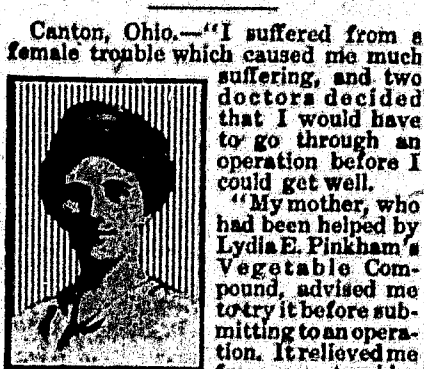

Canned Rhubarb for Sauce

Wash rhubarb. Cut in pieces. Blanch one or two minutes in boiling water. Plunge into cold water and pack at once into jars. Pour over it a hot sirup of one quart of water to one cupful sugar. Adjust rubber and partly seal. Set the jars in a hot-water bath and steam for twenty minutes.

Canned Rhubarb for Pies

Carefully select and wash rhubarb. Cut in nearly even lengths and pack in clean jars. Fill the jars with cold water and seal. Wrap jars in paper to prevent the rhubarb from bleaching.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. I relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Costs you 1

Can you think of any cheaper way to overcome the ordinary kinds of sickness, that nearly everybody has occasionally, than by using a strictly reliable prescription of medicine that costs only ONE cent? Isn't it real economy to bottle always at hand to use when you feel ill or if your foot aches or your head aches? Surely there's no like the original "Dr. P." (Wood's) to relieve slow-acting bowels or constipation. This condition often is serious illness, relieve it with "Dr. P." made only by the L. F. M. Co., Portland, Me. Ask your dealer.

Must be raised by sale of War Stamps

This means that every man, woman and child must buy. Someone else is fighting for us "over there." Do not let someone else buy the War Stamps that it is your duty to buy.

Don't be a glackeer. The meanest kind of a glackeer is the person who fails to back the boys who are giving their lives that you may do business, live quietly in your homes and have your children safe here.

If you have a boy at the front, facing German guns, you know what war is,—but if you have not just think for a minute how

A mother or a father who has a son there dear to them as are your children to you, must feel in these days,—think of their life,—think of what a day's news may bring to them,—and then ask yourself if money means much as compared with boys.

And these boys are fighting for you and for me. This space is patriotically contributed by

Costs you 1¢

Can you think of any cheaper way to overcome the ordinary kinds of sickness, that nearly everybody has occasionally, than by using a strictly reliable prescription or preparation of medicines that costs only ONE CENT a dose? Isn't it real economy to have a bottle always at hand to use when you feel bilious or if your food distresses, or your headache? Surely there's nothing like the original "L.P." Atwood's Medicine to relieve slow-acting bowels or chronic constipation. This condition often leads to serious illness; relieve it with the true "L.P." made only by the L.P. A BOY AND HIS CHUM

By J. W. Foley
If we should be shipwrecked together
And only had water for one,
And it was the hottest of weather
Night out in the boiling hot sun, He'd tell me—no matter how bad he Might want it—to take a drink first;
And then he would smile—oh, so glad he Had saved me!—and perish from thirst!

Or if he were lost on the prairie
And only had food for a day,
He'd come and would give me the share
He had,
Had wrapped up and hidden away;
And after I ate it with sadness
He'd smile with his very last breath,
And lay himself down full of gladness
To save me—and starve right to death.

And if I was wounded in battle
And out where great danger might be,
He'd come through the roar and the rattle
Of guns and of bullets to me.
He'd carry me out, full of glory,
No matter what trouble he had;
And then he would fall down, all gory
With wounds, and would die—but he glad!

We're chums—that's the reason he'd do it;
And that's what a chum ought to be.
And if it was he'd go through it,
If I should call him to me.
You see either fellow may know you,
And friends that you have come and come:
But a boy has one boy he can go to,
For help all the time—that's his chum.

"GIRL OF MINE"

By Major A. A. Durkee, who left his Canadian home in August, 1914, for averence duty, his little daughter of three years went as far as the gate and there said her "Good by, daddy, come home pitty soon." On her birthday, two years later, when on the battlefield of St. Mihiel, he wrote and sent her the following thought in verse:

Do you remember the summer's day,
When daddy kissed you and went away—
Kissed you and left you lonesome at play,
Girl of mine?

You told me then to "Come home pitty soon."

I think you expected me back at noon—
Have you watched for me since, girl
dear?

Girl of mine!

It's a very long time that you have to wait,
From babyhood on through to girlhood's gate.

Do you still think that "Daddy" is awful late?

Girl of mine!

I'm hungry for you, and your handsome eyes,
And every day when the sunlight dies,
I look for you there in the western skies.

Girl of mine.

Not though there are faces of angels
there,
There's none with my baby can compare.

My babe of the eyes and the curly hair,
Girl of mine.

And so I can only stay and wait,
Till I come to the road with the Peaceful Gate.

By the road that will lead me back to you, straight,
Girl of mine.

A LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

By Joseph K. Colton, in Gardner News
I've just got a letter from overseas
from a boy that I know quite well,
Who said on account of the censorship that there wouldn't be much to tell.

But he wrote that he wanted us all to know he was thinking of "over-here"
And he sent me the season's greetings
and the joy of a glad new year.

Now I haven't been either bold or loud since we took up the game of strife
And bidding the boys "good-by, good luck"—well, it's not my idea of life.

Perhaps I have gloomed too much for them and folks they have left behind,
And wondered a bit too long of days
why the fates should be so unkind.

But I'm going to smile, for it's this I read: "Don't worry about me, please,
I'm healthy and happy and satisfied,
more so as the days increase, Sometimes I am lonesome, but not for long, I'm finding so much to do, I've clean forgotten the way, old pal,
you go about to be blue!"

It shows that he has the good old grit that he's ready to take what comes,
And it's good for the millions here at home who wait for the calling drums,
In fort and field where the old flag flies,
each holding its eager host,
And the loyal men of the second draft
—who seek at a German boast!

The letter has taught me this—
To carry a daily smile,
And trust that a heavenly hand
Will right the things in a while!

ON PATROL IN NO MAN'S LAND

By J. H. Knight-Adkins, "Captain Glosters," in London Spectator
Five men over the parapet, with a one-star look in charge, Stumbling along through the litter and muck and cursing blind and large, Hooking their gear in the clutching wire as they wriggle through the gap.

For an hour's patrol in No Man's Land, and take what chance may hap.
Over the sodden parapet and through the rusty wire,
Out of touch with all good things, follows, light and fire;
Every clattering bullet in a Judas
as we pass,
At every star-shell, face to earth upon the sodden grass.

From Misery Farm to Seven Trees it's safe enough to go,
But it's a belly-crawl down Dead Man's Ditch, half choked with grimy snow.

Then back beside the grass-grown road
—Watch out! They've got it well To where a company's listening post lies shivering in the wet.

All the dark's a mystery, and every breath's a threat—
I've forgotten many a thing, but this
I can't forget,
A crawl by sight in No Man's Land,
with never a sight or sound, Except the stars and the rifle flash and the blind death whispering round.

And I've failed at many a task, but this one thing I've learned, It's little things make Paradise—like three hours' sleep well earned,
A sip of cake in a battered pail, and a cup of ration rum,
Or a gobble of meat of lard and mud,
with the gear for a moment dumb.

And horror's not from the terrible things—men torn to rags by a shell,
And the whole trench swimming in blood and slush, like a butcher's shop in hell;
It's silence and night and the smell of the dead that shakes a man to the soul.

From Misery Farm to Dead Man's
Ditch on a "Nil report" patrol.

Five men back to the trench again with a one-star look in charge, Stumbling over the rusty line and cursing blind and large,
Enter the trenching up to date by a guttering candle's flare!

"No report" (save that hell is dark, and we have just been there).

Events of Interest From Washington

By J. E. Jones

O'CONNOR DISCOVERS DEMOCRA-CY

T. P. O'Connor, Irish Nationalist
Member of Parliament, and distinguished editor, has been telling official Washington why Ireland should have home rule. A few nights ago he gave a talk at the Interior Department, and Senators Lodge and Phelan were among his distinguished patrons; and the latter acted as chairman of the meeting.

The distinguished Irishman attended the joint session of Congress when the President spoke. His description, from the viewpoint of a Member of the British Parliament, is unusually interesting.

Mr. O'Connor writes:
"I was among those present in the gallery of the House of Representatives when President Wilson made his address to Congress on Monday. It was very novel and interesting to me. In everything I saw the difference of spirit which lies behind your institutions and ours. The occasion, I recall, which bears some resemblance to what I saw yesterday, in the British Parliament, was their opening by the late King Edward. Those who love show, certainly would have preferred the British ceremony; and of course there was much that was interesting in the uniforms, the ancient ceremonials, the historic officials. I acknowledge that I preferred Monday, and especially because I saw in it that utter simplicity, unpretentiousness and reality which are the fundamental qualities of the American outlook on life. Personally I have no love for uniforms or big wings or trailing robes; I preferred the stern simplicity of Monday. I liked to see the judges of your Supreme Court appear just in ordinary garb; and even the Congressmen lounging in their seats in the airy garments suitable to this sere heat, all appealed to me as symptoms of the equality of the Republic."

"I was surprised to see two quite small children seated among the members on the floor of the House. I assume that they were brought there by their father. Such a thing would be impossible in either of our parliamentary chambers; it gave a deliciously human touch. There was at one moment a majesty and even awe amid all the simplicity of the proceedings. It was when the official announced the entrance of the Vice President and of the Senate of the United States. Behind the simple words my inner vision saw a vast, powerful, astounding country just as De Quincey in his opium dreams was haunted by the form of the Roman emperor who passed from far off territories through the streets of Rome in the triumphal procession."

"I felt another thrill when the member approached for the entrance of the President. All around me I could realize the hush, the expectancy and the palpitations of the great audience about to catch sight of the ruler who stood for their many millions of population, for their mighty effort and sacrifice; and who, on the gigantic stage of the world tragedy of today, stands forth as the foremost, most powerful, most inspiring of the one hand and most dreaded figures on the other. And then appeared this man with almost superhuman powers and responsibilities; and behold I saw just a simple, refined, man who, except in his dignity of bearing and his impressive features, was nothing more than an ordinary citizen.
Here was the symbol and representative of power greater than that of any potentate on earth; mightier even than that of the czar before his debase-ment; the arbiter who has to decide the fate of millions; and lo! he came in casual, the moral dictator of the world of today and the final factor in turning the balance of all generations to come to the side of right or of wrong; and yet there he was, just an unpretentious modest man, with no signs even of self-consciousness; a friend just speaking;
as though he were addressing friends with whom he wanted to take counsel, and whose judgment he valued almost above his own."

"I was not able to hear the first few words of the address very clearly for I was some distance away; but soon every word came clear and soft to my ear. Again I had that overwhelming significance of the occasion and the manner of the speaker and the style of the speech. Everybody now knows the characteristics of the literary style of the President. It has the severity of Greek literature; and of the finest French prose; the nearest resemblance to it is your presidential utterances in those of Abraham Lincoln. One feels at once in either hearing or reading the words of the President that it produces the curious, almost paradoxical effect of having at once the straightforward and businesslike simplicity of a great,
straightforward businesslike people;
and yet that an analysis, it reveals at the same time the perfect facility and elegance—that exact appropriateness of word to idea which are the highest qualities of the subtlest style. What could be simpler, for instance, than the

MORE TURNIPS—BETTER
SHEEP

Every sheep owner should make an effort this season to provide some form of succulent food either in roots or sil-lage for next winter's feeding. Sheep generally have come through the past winter in a thin, run-down condition, owing to the fact that most hay was late, out, and consequently was coarse and dry, making very poor feed for sheep, as all sheep owners well know.
However, had they been provided with a proper amount of succulent food, such as turnips, beets or silage, all of which can be produced at a comparatively small expense, they would have come through in a good thrifty condition, and would have been provided with a good udder, well filled with milk; consequently would have owned their lambs, and instead of poor lambs that could stand all four feet on a ten cent piece, they would have straightened out and made growing their lambs. Turnips are the most favored by sheep owners because they are produced cheaply and everything considered are the safest and best. A daily ration for an average sheep is from a pint to a quart or from one to two pounds of roots, and from two to three pounds of silage. The amount that should be provided for each sheep depends upon the condition she is in when coming to the barn. If she is thin, she should have from two to three pounds of clover or fine mixed, early-cut hay per day, with one pint of about one pound of roots. If no clover or fine mixed hay is available, each sheep should be fed the full amount of two pounds of roots or three pounds of silage. A conservative estimate is from five to seven bushels of roots for each sheep for the winter. Grains will probably remain high in price during the next year and consequently it is up to every stock owner to provide as far as possible, all the roots, grain, etc., he will need during the next year. The most successful sheep owners provide a good fall run for their flocks, either a piece of rape, or a field run, or both.
If the sheep can have a good field run, that is generally all they need to bring them to the barn in good flesh. If that is impossible, they should be provided with the rape which is very fattening.
The usual practice in raising rape is to either fence a section of the pasture, or fit a piece from the field adjoining the pasture. The same is fenced in and when ready for the sheep, a section of the fence or gate (as the case may be) is removed and the sheep allowed to feed from one to two hours a day for three or four days, and then allowed to go in and out at pleasure. It is estimated that one acre of rape will provide feed for 30 to 40 sheep and will continue to grow until killed by the frost.

THEY HAD PLINY TO BATE

The arrest of Medical Director F. P.
Nash of the U. S. Navy, and his wife, charged with hoarding food, created a sensation in the Capital. The food stored in the Nash home was valued at $1,921.18; and while sugar is supposed to be scarce the Nash's had 2,200 pounds of granulated, 505 pounds of brown sugar, 16 pounds of powdered sugar and 637 pounds of domestic sugar.
That they proposed to have plenty of soup is shown by the inventory of 509 cans of Campbell's soup and 192 cans of Franks-American soup. Russian caviar, wines and liquors, canned goods, and everything else to eat, were found in superabundance in the Nash home. The penalty for hoarding of this kind is a fine of not exceeding $5,000 and imprisonment up to two years. There were expressions everywhere of righteous indignation upon the announcement by the Food Administration that the high medical officer of the Navy has been uncovered as a wholesale food hoarder.

SPREADING UP INDUSTRY

A few weeks ago the newspapers were filled with reports tending to show the failure of the plans of the Shipping Board. But criticism along that line has ceased. Ten new ships were completed in a week during May, and eight-teen were launched. Millions of tons of new shipping is now being provided.
Charles M. Hughes, who is conducting the aircraft investigation, is getting all kinds of data together; and there is an expectancy that the investigation will find plenty of evidence of dilly-dallying and delays. However, there is a well defined impression that the presence of graft in the aircraft program will not be substantiated.

ENLIST—AND GO TO COLLEGE

Many a 1918 school graduate is debating with himself this year: Shall I go to college? or shall I enlist at once for military service?
The War Department has just made it possible to do both. It says, in effect, to the ambitious young American: "You serve your country by going to college.
To make sure that you do not lose thereby the opportunity of serving your country in a direct military capacity, you will be asked to join the special U. S. Army college training units that are to be formed. You will be liable for service at a moment's notice, but because you are worth more to the nation with your college training than without it, you will be expected to stay

NOTICE!

W. S. S.
WAR SAVINGS STAMPS
Issued by the
UNITED STATES
GOVERNMENT

To The People of Bethel

The President of the United States and the Secretary of the Treasury have issued a public call to the people of the United States to pledge themselves during June to buy during this year two billion dollars of War Savings Stamps. These stamps are United States Bonds, bearing four per-cent compound interest, and their purchase price with interest is absolutely guaranteed by the Government.

The sale of this amount of stamps to the people of the United States is vitally necessary to our military operations, and it is equally vital that the people pledge themselves to save; to avoid unnecessary expenditures; to refrain from using, for personal service, the products of industries needed by our army and navy, and to invest in Government securities to the limit of their ability.

THE PEOPLE OF BETHEL are called upon to purchase War Savings Stamps to the amount of $33,732.50 maturity value.

THE PEOPLE OF BETHEL are called upon to pledge themselves DURING JUNE - before June 28th - to make this purchase during this year, and to redeem these pledges by purchasing, in installments if necessary, the amount so pledged, without unnecessary delay.

Thus far, although the year is about half over, the sum subscribed in Bethel has reached about $5,000.

Let us all, for the credit of our town, and the State of Maine, resolve to put Bethel "over the top" before the twenty-eighth of June.

We can do this if every tax-payer will do his or her part; if people of means will support these securities with the same patriotic spirit that the people of the country have shown in regard to the Liberty Bonds; if everyone who can possibly do so will buy the maximum amount allowed by law - $1,000.

As June 28th approaches, let us be able to meet the call of the President of the United States with an answering message that there are NONE among us unenlisted on that day.

Signed, E. C. PARK, Local Director for Bethel

Quotation from the President's Statement:

"I earnestly appeal to every man, woman and child to pledge themselves on or before the 28th day of June to save constantly and to buy as regularly as possible the securities of the Government, and to do this as far as possible through membership in War Savings Societies. The 28th day of June ends this special period of enlistment in the great volunteer army of production and saving here at home. May there be none unenlisted on that day."

Quotation from Secretary McAdoo's Statement:

"There will be conducted, under the direction of the Treasury Department, a campaign for pledges, culminating on June 28th, when loyal Americans throughout the country will be asked to commit themselves to this program."
